

Did you know?

Lambic beer can only be made here

The secret? It all comes down to the Zenne River Valley's air, teeming with wild yeasts. The brew is exposed to the air on a cold winter's night, allowing the wild yeasts to 'inoculate' the wort and set a spontaneous fermentation process into motion. That's what infuses lambic with its distinctive taste. After a year of fermentation in wooden barrels, the young lambic is ready for drinking. Cheers! 🍺

What's new?

Beer activities

October is lambic month. For a whole month, we celebrate the unique taste of beer in the Pajottenland and Zenne River Valley. It's the perfect opportunity to visit this region and pop into one of its many breweries. Discover all activities this month via the events page, please note that this site is only available in Dutch. 🍷

Wild Yeast Walk

Walk of the month

Trek on foot through the land of the lambic beer. Wild yeasts dance over an open, rolling landscape where the farm houses and water mills still look as they did when Bruegel wandered these paths. If you are curious about how these yeasts work their magic, visit one of the four lambic breweries along the way: Kestemont Brewery, Lindemans Brewery, farm brewery 't Guldenhooft or 4Pajot.
